

Chi-Hsu Wang (M'92-SM'93-F'08) was born in Tainan, Taiwan, in 1954. He received the B.S. degree in control engineering from National Chiao-Tung University, Hsinchu, Taiwan, the M.S. degree in computer science from the National Tsing-Hua University, and the Ph.D. degree in electrical and computer engineering from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in 1976, 1978, and 1986, respectively.

He was appointed Associate Professor in 1986, and Professor in 1990, in the department of Electrical Engineering, National Taiwan University of Science and Technology, Taipei, Taiwan. He is currently a professor in the department of electrical and control engineering, National Chiao Tung University, Hsinchu, Taiwan. His current research interests and publications are in the areas of fuzzy logic, neural network, intelligent control, adaptive control and robust control. His current industrial links are mainly in the control of intelligent automobile, especially the intelligent control of internal combustion engine using renewable fuel, such as ethanol. He was awarded IEEE Fellow in 2008 for his contribution to fuzzy logic, neural network and intelligent control.

He is currently serving as an associate editor of IEEE Trans. On Systems, Man, and Cybernetics, Part B. He has also served as a member of Board of Governors (BOGs) during 2005~2007 and as an active Webmaster of IEEE Systems, Man, and Cybernetics Society.
